[AUSTIN]

A Tiki Speakeasy

Austin's latest hot spot, Tiki Tatsu-Ya, is not your average tiki bar and restaurant. Under the large yellow "Aikawa Tropical Tours" banner, you'll find a window plastered with Myspace, AARP, and AAA Travel stickers, and a sign that states SORRY, CLOSED—GONE SURFING. Don't worry; you're at the right place. Just go around the back of the building, slide open a door, and you'll find yourself inside a 2-story tropical space filled with bird sounds, drumbeats, and a feast of visual treats. Tiki Tatsu-Ya opened in October 2021, and reservations were booked a month out (walk-up seating may be available). Tiki Tatsu-Ya is infused with playfulness and mystery, from laser-cut wooden drinks menus and giant cocktails that serve 2 to 6 people to a light- and sound-effects show that's triggered by ordering certain menu items. Rum-based cocktails in specialty drinkware arrive at the table glowing or emitting smoke. A limited shared-plate food menu includes taro tots, Spam on the half shell, foie gras musubi, and butter mochi for dessert. Guests must be 21 or older.
